

Now that the campaign is over the papers who abused the Silver Party for several weeks are now disposed to treat the new State officers with obsequious respect. Now the News, which tried to make out our gubernatorial candidate was a thief, is coming round on the wake of the inevitable and rises to explain as follows:

To the new officers we extend a friendly greeting. If we offended you during the campaign, remember your newspapers did not spare our feelings so we are even and we can now begin fair and square.

Its Worth Recognized.

It has been a matter of more or less comment as to why people residing in Nevada should send their children to California to educate them, when every facility could be found at home to acquire the best of learning. It would seem now, however, that the worth of our state university is beginning to be realized by at least a few of our residents, for with the opening of the winter term five students who have heretofore been enrolled at Napa college have entered our state institution.

If the people of Nevada, who are in any wise prejudiced against the university, would take the time to day the institution a personal visit of inspection before sending their children to California, there is no doubt but what their prejudices would be dispelled. Such was the case with the mother of one of the new students referred to, who, upon being shown about the place and given an idea of the methods employed in educating students, said it was superior to the college her son had been attending in California.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Lyon County Times of last Saturday, referring to the cause of the suicide of J. A. Huntoon, County Treasurer of that county, says:

"It is evident that the shortage has existed for some time past, and that when quarterly count of money has been made heretofore the Treasurer has turned in the ledger funds in his possession to make the county funds balance, but this time there was not enough money in both the county and ledger funds, by about $1,300, to show an even balance."

Charles M. Sharridge of the San Jose Mercury has purchased the Call of San Francisco for $350,000. He is a young man, a bustling journalist, and widely known. Under his management the old sleepy Call will give the other morning dailies a great race.

A morning paper in which the general public has a real interest, is just now needed in San Francisco. There is a big field for such a paper, and the field is open.

Mr. Huntoon left no money any where. While not much of a drinker, he was a liberal and jolly fellow, whose expenses in the saloons would average $2.50 or $3 a day, and his election expenses during the last two campaigns have been very heavy while he has loaned considerable money to different parties, some $1200 in notes being found in his old safe, only about half of which are good."

Governor Penney of Oregon, who has been ridiculed and denounced by turns by the Wall street organs for telling the truth, has endowed Williams College, Massachusetts, with a scholarship in memory of his son who died at the college last term. The money, $44,500, is to be used for the support of needy and deserving students, preference to be given to Oregon students when such are in the college.

Mrs. L. E. Castle has qualified as Justice of the Peace at Callender, Iowa, and expects to administer the duties of the office for the term for which she was elected. Her husband has a drug store in the town and runs it in his wife's name. It was the intention of the voters to nominate him for the office of Justice of the Peace but her initials were used by mistake and she, not her husband, was elected.

"Sin is the cause of all poverty," says the editor of the Sutter Independent, which causes the Fresno Express to remark: "Ah, there you damned, poverty-stricken, carbuncled, grunting old job of the professional a guilty conscience made you own up to it at last, did it? Now reform and get right!"

The Express has a ready been retained by the Sutter Independent, the old paper and Express, which then said:
